THE GOVERNOR'S WAY.

Governor Bradley is a Patron of the Republican Papers.

When it was plain Wm. O. Bradley he was a patron of THE LEDGER, and he always did what many politicians fail to do—he paid his subscription.

And now that it is Governor Bradley—Republican Governor of Kentucky, if you please,—he still wants THE LEDGER, as this will show.

LANCASTER KY., Dec. 9th.

Dear Sir: Please send my paper here after to Frankfort, Ky. Yours, etc.

W. O. BRADLEY.

Governor, your command shall be obeyed, and here's success to your Administration.

THIS MORNING'S BLAZE.

It caused a Great Big Scare and a Small Loss.

The alarm this morning at 9 o'clock was caused by the burning of the frame residence on West Third street belonging to J. A. McKibben.

The house is a double frame, and the situation—it being in the midst of a row of frame houses—made it look like a regular conflagration was inevitable.

But, thanks to our good water works, the fire was soon controlled.

One side of the house was occupied by John Thomas, lately moved to this city from Manchester, while George Cooper, lately of Germantown, occupied the other side.

The losses of all parties concerned will not amount to very much.

Diamonds

in the most artistic mounting; stones that are gyps. These goods can be found in P. J. Murphy's stock, and at prices never before equaled. Remember his offer—any Diamond sold by him money will be refunded on it, less 10 per cent.

SURE CURE FOR DULL TRADE

John Wanamaker Says:

"I do the heaviest advertising in dull times."

"Then it is when people look most keenly for bargains and are anxious to know what things cost, and where they can save money."

I advertise particular things, give prices, and take as much pains with my announcements as I do with my stock. One big dinner went keep up the reputation of the big house—but steady, good cooking does it. I never permit interest in my announcements to lag, and never miss an issue in my chosen publications. Advertising has made my store one of the largest in the country."

George Riemann, the Maysville Club's pitcher of last season, has signed a contract to play with the Detroit Western League team next year. Riemann is a splendid pitcher and should do well in the League.

Dave Thompson and Henry Murray of Big Stone Gap, Va., were playing cards in one of the hands one of them held four aces and the other a pair of aces. A dispute arose and Thompson shot Murray in the breast, causing a fatal wound.

A Kansas man was brought up before the church for persistent lying. His excuse was that his wife by mistake used concentrated lyre for baking powder and he ate a couple of the biscuits, since that he had never been able to tell the truth.

Major C. T. Picton is Manager of the State Hotel at Denton, Texas, which the traveling man says is one of the best hotels in that section. In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Major Picton says: "I have used it myself and in my family for several years, and take pleasure in saying that I consider it an infallible cure for diarrhea and dysentery. I always recommend it, and have frequently administered it to my guests in the hotel, and in every case it has proven itself worthy of unqualified indorsement." For sale by J. James Wood, Drugist.

THEY LEFT THE CAR.

But They Took Everything Else That Was in It.

Early Sunday morning thieves made a raid on the C. and O. freight car standing in the C. and O. yards at Covington. They completely gutted it of its contents.

The car door was pried open and a wagon driven alongside of it and filled with drygoods, boots and shoes and other merchandise.

After taking what they wanted, they drove off, leaving no clue behind them.

The Covington police were notified, but as yet no arrest has been made.

DEGENERATE DEMOCRACY.

A CONTRAST BETWEEN WHAT WAS AND WHAT IS.

How President Pierce Upheld the Nation's Flag, While President Cleveland Haunted It Down.

Washington Star.

In discussing its foreign policy friends of the Administration are sometimes pleased to ascribe all adverse criticism of that policy to political aims and prejudices. They conceive it to be a part of the play to restore the Republican party to power, and they therefore denounce such criticism as un-American and want indignity and patriotism. This is the principal note heard at this time, when the acute siege of the Cuban matter, the unsettled state of the Venezuelan matter and the approaching revival of the Hawaiian matter all lend interest to the President's forthcoming message.

ALL FOR POLITICS.

It is, upon the whole, regarded as a very strange note for the President's supporters to be sounding. They seem ignorant of the fact that it is upon that very ground that Cleveland has been condemned. The belief is, indeed, that it was politics, and but very little else, that controlled him in the one gigantic blunder which has cast a shadow over his whole course in foreign affairs. What would his course have been if Benjamin Harrison and John W. Foster had passed the Hawaiian complication along to him without action? There is a sort of friendship to him in the feeling that his course would have been very different from what it was. But those men acted promptly, and left the American flag where it had been raised. Mr. Cleveland had hauled down, and nine men out of ten hold that he was influenced in that action largely, if not solely, because of a desire to undo the work of his Republican predecessor.

It is noted to Mr. Cleveland's disadvantage that such was not the old way in such matters. Earlier occurrences show that earlier American diplomacy was conducted upon a different plan. The rule then was to separate local politics from foreign affairs, and for one party as another to stand up, even at some disadvantage abroad, to whatever had been done officially in the name of the country.

A very striking instance of this is quoted from the record of the Administration of Franklin Pierce, when the spirit of a contention which in its larger phase had been raised by President Taylor was maintained with emphasis and success by General Pierce, thus insuring a continuity of American purpose and policy. President Taylor was a Whig. President Pierce was a Democrat. But both had been soldiers, and when it came to the flag and its full significance, no difference whatever could be traced between the attitudes they assumed.

The Star last Monday recited the interest manifested by President Taylor and indorsed by President Fillmore in the struggle of the Hungarians for freedom. The case now in point was an animated variation on that patriotic theme.

THE CASE OF KOZITA.

Among the Hungarians banished with Kosuth for defying Austria was a man named Martin Kozita, who came to the United States, and soon after declared his intention of becoming an American citizen. But before he had in fact become a citizen private business called him abroad, and July, 1858, found him at Smyrna, in Turkish territory. While there he was recognized by the Austrian Consul, was seized by some toughs employed for the work by this Consul, and hurried aboard an Austrian warship lying at anchor in the roads and there ironed. Kozita appealed to the American Consul at Smyrna, who at once took up his case. The Austrian Consul held that Kozita was still a subject of that Kingdom; that he had violated his promise in returning from the United States, made, it was claimed, at the time of his expulsion from Austria, and that Austria's jurisdiction over him was complete. Kozita not only insisted on his right to American protection, but pointed out that he was not, while in Smyrna, on Austrian soil, and that, moreover, he had not come from the United States on any political or revolutionary errand.

A NAVAL OFFICER'S DUTY.

The American ship of war St. Louis came into the roads at Smyrna while the case was up. Captain Ingraham, a South Carolinian of courage and address, was in command, and the American Consul invited him into the management of Kozita's case. Captain Ingraham not only responded, but exposed Kozita's cause with enthusiasm, and in company with the American Consul went aboard the Austrian vessel, and joined in the demand that Kozita be turned over to the protection of the French Consul at Smyrna pending a report home and a thorough examination of the whole question. But the Austrian commander and the Austrian Consul held back, and after Captain Ingraham had returned to his ship he got an intimation that Kozita would be smuggled off that night into Austrian territory.

CAPTAIN INGRAHAM'S DUTY.

The American commander met the emergency instantly and like a man. He sent word to the Austrian commander that Kozita must be delivered on shore to the French Consul by 4 o'clock or he (Ingraham) would lay his ship alongside and take him by force. Four o'clock came, with no response, when Captain Ingraham, true to his word, drew up to the Austrian with his guns pointed and his decks cleared for action, and Kozita was unfurled and sent ashore. The St. Louis was not at all formidable in herself. She probably would not have lived an hour before the guns of the other fellow. But the quiet but unmistakable air of business about the transaction, the American flag at the masthead and the grit of the American sailor, who was sent to the center, carried the day.

HIS ACTION SUSTAINED.

There was, of course, a great outcry by Austria. The same Mr. Hulseman, who had appeared for Austria in the Dudley Mann affair, appeared for her also in this affair, and characterizing Captain Ingraham's action as tantamount to a declaration of war and an outrage, demanded that it be disavowed by this Government.

William L. Marcy, the Secretary of State, replied in a long note—a model of its kind—going over the whole case, supporting Kozita upon his bare declaration of an intention to become an American citizen and commending rather than disavowing the course of Captain Ingraham. Even Congress took a hand, for it approved of the conduct of the American commander by formal resolution and presented a medal to him. In addition to this he was made Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance and Hydrography of the Navy Department, and enjoyed distinction.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

Now, all of this was in the old times, when men both afloat and ashore stood up for the country and worked together for its glory and advancement. What would have been Captain Ingraham's fate had the conditions prevailing today have prevailed then?

Consider the case of Admiral Walker, and the snub he received after his visit to Honolulu; the case of Admiral Meade, who went on the retired list prematurely because of feeling that the present was an un-American Administration; the case of Admiral Kirkland, who has been ordered home for congratulating a personal friend upon his election as President of a Republic! Put any one of them aboard the biggest battleship in the Navy in any foreign port today, and would he feel safe in Captain Ingraham's circumstances, in copying Captain Ingraham's gallant example? Would he not be aware, if he did copy it, to fear "getting the sick" as soon as the news of his performance reached home?

There will be an entertainment given at the M. E. Church, Forest avenue, Sixth Ward, on Thursday night, December 12th, 1895, under the auspices of the Epworth League. Everybody invited to come.

A Sufferer Cured

"Every season, from the time I was two years old, I suffered dreadfully from erysipelas, which kept growing worse until my hands were almost useless. The bones softened so that they would bend, and several of my fingers are now crooked from this cause. On my hand I carry large scars, which, but for

AYER'S

Sarsaparilla, would be scars, provided I was alive and able to carry anything. Eight bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured me, so that I have had no return of the disease for more than twenty years. The first bottle seemed to reach the spot and a persistent use of it has perfected the cure."—O. C. DAVIS, Wautoma, Wis.
